Past performance is no guarantee of future results and is not constant over time.

Performances are calculated by comparing the net asset value at the end of the period to that at the beginning of the period. The figures shown are calculated in the reference currency of the share class. They are calculated after deduction of all charges, with the exception of any entry/exit charges. Net figures do not take account of taxes applicable to the average retail individual client in their country of residence. When the currency shown differs from the client's currency, there is a currency risk that can result in a decrease in value.

MANAGEMENT TEAM COMMENT

For once, European equities started the year better than Wall Street. In January, the Stoxx 600 gained 6.3% while the S&P 500 gained 2.7%. Chinese indices were under pressure overall (CSI 300 at -2.99%) and emerging equities rose slightly (MSCI Emerging Markets at +1.66%). In particular, European equities were led by technology and luxury, two sectors with a high index weighting. The excellent results published by SAP, ASML and Richemont supported all stocks in these sectors. At the beginning of the month, favourable macroeconomic data in the United States (ISM index and the labour market) added to concerns about the impact of Donald Trump's policy on the economy to accelerate tensions on the fixed income markets that have been underway since December. Investors therefore significantly lowered their expectations of rate cuts by the Fed, which started the year with a pause. At the same time, the ECB cut its rates by 25bp at the end of the month, reinforcing the strength of the dollar, which ended the month at 1.0362 against the euro. Gold continued its rise with a rebound of 5.29% over the month to $2800/ounce. In terms of allocation movements, the duration of the bond allocation was increased via sovereign debt (ETF EUR 7-10Y) and credit (Arcelor 2031, bond maturity fund US Chronos 2030). At the same time, shorter positions were sold (Renault 2026, Nissan 2026, Indosuez Dollar Bonds). On the equity allocation, two European sectors (Automotive and Oil & Gas) were sold given the current sector volatility, which makes us prefer more index-based positions for the time being (strengthening of the Eurostoxx 50 tracker position). Lastly, a position on gold was initiated: the metal remains supported by structural factors (CB purchases, concerns about monetary debasement, geopolitical risks, etc.).
