Past performance is no guarantee of future results and is not constant over time.

Performances are calculated by comparing the net asset value at the end of the period to that at the beginning of the period. The figures shown are calculated in the reference currency of the share class. They are calculated after deduction of all charges, with the exception of any entry/exit charges. Net figures do not take account of taxes applicable to the average retail individual client in their country of residence. When the currency shown differs from the client's currency, there is a currency risk that can result in a decrease in value.

MANAGEMENT TEAM COMMENT

Financial markets remained resilient in July despite strong political news. The enactment of the "One Big Beautiful Bill Act", Donald Trump's budget law, appears to be short-term support but raises questions about the longer-term US debt situation. At the same time, the end of the pause on tariffs gave way to trade agreements bringing the average tariff to 17%. A trade easing that supported the dollar (+3.25% against the euro) in July, after several months of decline.

The S&P 500 continued its rebound in July, outperforming the European market with the Eurostoxx ending the month up by a small 0.31%. The US 10-year borrowing rate fluctuated around 4.3%, reflecting the duality of risks for the Federal Reserve (Fed) with customs duties that could push inflation higher, while the US job market showed some signs of a slowdown. Risk symmetry highlighted by the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC), which kept key rates unchanged in July despite pressure from Donald Trump to lower rates. For its part, the ECB froze its key rates, thus suspending its downward cycle.

Against this backdrop, the fund ended the month up 1.11%. The best contributors were US equity vehicles, which benefited from the catch-up of the US market (S&P 500 and Nasdaq +2.4%) and the appreciation of the dollar (+3%). At the European level, banks (+9.5%) and the value tracker, whose banking sector is the largest component, continued their rally, benefiting from excellent earnings releases. Finally, we cleared all our direct dollar-denominated bond lines.
