Past performance is no guarantee of future results and is not constant over time.

Performances are calculated by comparing the net asset value at the end of the period to that at the beginning of the period. The figures shown are calculated in the reference currency of the share class. They are calculated after deduction of all charges, with the exception of any entry/exit charges. Net figures do not take account of taxes applicable to the average retail individual client in their country of residence. When the currency shown differs from the client's currency, there is a currency risk that can result in a decrease in value.

MANAGEMENT TEAM COMMENT

January started on a high note with equity indices hitting one record after another: the EuroStoxx 50 +2.7% with a high of 4.5%, the S&P +1.4%, the Kospi in Korea +22% and, paradoxically, this rise occurred in a very turbulent geopolitical context: pressure from Donald Trump on Greenland, the arrest of Nicolas Maduro in Venezuela without any impact on the oil price, the deployment of an American armada off the coast of Iran... The only sector to benefit from this situation was defence, which gained nearly 14% over the month and even posted a rise of 22% at its peak.

However, the most significant increases are those of precious metals and, more specifically, gold. The latter gained 13% and silver +19%, even though, on the last day of the month, prices plummeted (silver, for example, fell by 26%) mainly due to the appointment of Kevin Warsh as head of the Fed, which eased, at least temporarily, fears about the Fed's independence from pressure from Trump.

Lastly, note the start of publications in the technology sector with its share of surprises. Thus, Meta (+10%) and ASML (+32% since the beginning of the year) offset disappointing results at Microsoft (-10%) and SAP (-16% on the day of the results). Against this backdrop, the fund ended the month up 1.59%. The best contribution comes naturally from our positions on gold (+63bps) and our exposure to emerging markets (+16bps). After the strong rebound in defence stocks (+12%), we reduced our weighting in the sector by half. Lastly, we initiated a position on gold mines taking advantage of the sell-off (-9%) on the last day of the month. They will take full advantage of a low extraction cost compared to the surge in gold.
