Past performance is no guarantee of future results and is not constant over time.

Performances are calculated by comparing the net asset value at the end of the period to that at the beginning of the period. The figures shown are calculated in the reference currency of the share class. They are calculated after deduction of all charges, with the exception of any entry/exit charges. Net figures do not take account of taxes applicable to the average retail individual client in their country of residence. When the currency shown differs from the client's currency, there is a currency risk that can result in a decrease in value.

MANAGEMENT TEAM COMMENT

The equity markets continued their momentum, breaking records everywhere except in the United States. The Euro Stoxx 50 was up 3.2%, the Nikkei 225 gained 10.4% and the record went to the Kospi in South Korea, which added 19.5%, an increase of more than 48% since the beginning of the year. Only the S&P 500 and the Nasdaq were down, by 0.9% and 2.3% respectively. The Nasdaq fell on uncertainties about the profitability of the billions invested in artificial intelligence and doubts as to the future winners and losers. As a result, the software sector (Dassault Systeme -20%) and logistics saw massive sell-offs. The culmination was the Citrini Research report that suggested that AI would cause massive unemployment among white-collar workers and a collapse in consumption.

On 20 February, the US Supreme Court also declared most of Donald Trump's tariffs illegal. This uncertainty, as well as a rise in inflation, which could delay a potential rate cut by the FED, partly explains the poor performance of the US markets despite corporate earnings releases being largely better than expected.

Other key points were the US 10-year yield returning to its 2025 lows at 3.94%, the ongoing slide in bitcoin to $66,000 (-14.6% over the month), and the continued rise in gold, which reached $5,200 (+7.8%). The start of the conflict in the Gulf on 28 February pushed oil up to $67, with its consequences on all markets yet to be felt at the end of the month.

Against this backdrop, the fund ended the month up 2%. As in the previous month, our top contributors were our exposure to the emerging markets (+61bp) and to eurozone value stocks (+63 bp). Overall, the European zone significantly outperformed the US. In portfolio movements, we opened a position in the Indian market, which has underperformed over the past year, despite the country posting growth of more than 7% – well above the global average.
